

The Microbial Glycobiology Conference

Organizer Bio: Fikri Avci, PhD

Dr. Avci is currently Associate Professor of Biochemistry and Molecular Biology at the Center for Molecular Medicine in the University of Georgia. He leads an interdisciplinary research group at the interface of immunology and glycobiology with an objective to explore treatment of and protection from infectious diseases and cancers by understanding key molecular and cellular interactions between the components of the immune system and carbohydrate antigens associated with microbes or cancers.