

The Microbial Glycobiology Conference

Organizer Bio: Nathalie Juge

Professor Nathalie Juge 's research is focused on the glycobiology of host-microbe interactions. Since joining the Quadram Institute Bioscience in Norwich (UK), she leads a Research Group investigating the molecular mechanisms underpinning the adaptation of gut bacteria to mucus and the role of mucin glycans in this process. This mechanistic knowledge is required for identifying new biomarkers of disease and developing nutritional strategies to restore human health.